Fire Scourges Coast Mountains

One Missing and One Terribly Burned as Blaze Rages Near Bixby

Ominous dark clouds blot out the Santa Lucia mountains by day and an angry dull red glow hovers over the coast range by night as lives of hundreds of fire fighters and thousands of acres of forest, brush and grass stand in jeopardy of the blaze burning up Mescal ridge on Bixby mountain since Wednesday morning.

One King City rancher apparently burned to death between two blazing redwood trees and his young companion staggered to aid, terribly burned, during the first day of the great fire, the biggest to burn in the rugged area north of the Big Sur in many years.

Young men of Carmel, led by Ex-Mayor Everett Smith, a veteran forester and fire fighter, combed the burning area between Palo Colorado and the Little Sur on Wednesday night in an effort to find and perhaps rescue Joe Callandre, the lost man.

His companion in the struggle to escape the pursuing fire, John Murray, a C.C.C. boy from King City, staggered to the old county road mumbling that Callandre had been unable to get out, and was rushed to hospital here by Mrs. Hap Hasty.

With Carmel Councilman Smith were Jack Jordan—later brought to hospital with an injured shoulder,—Smith's son, Hugh, Stanley Clay and Albert Lockwood, all of Carmel. They searched Redwood canyon which opens on the Little Sur for Callandre.

Starting on the Kelly ranch on Mescal ridge, the fire worked its way up 3000-foot Bixby mountain before what was described as a gale on Wednesday afternoon. Yesterday morning it came close to the Little Sur, south boundary of the big burn, and was blazing also in Botcher's gap, where fighters attempted to halt its charge toward the thickly built-up redwood forest in Palo Colorado canyon.

Extensive holdings of Harry Hunt, El Sur Land and Cattle Company, and of T. A. Work suffered more or less from the fire, which was confined to an area of approximately 10,000 acres, some of it in Los Padres National Forest.

A puny regiment of 900 C.C.C. boys, with reinforcements coming in steadily all day yesterday, fought the fire. Communication by radio between bases set up at Bixby headland, King City and along the fire front was carried intermittently on under trying conditions.

Deer fleeing before the fire crowded along the coast highway. Over all hovered an air of tragedy and of the feebleness of trying to combat a blaze once started in the tinder dry hills.

Current Art Gallery To Open Soon

The Gallery of Contemporary Artists—resulting from the desire of a group of peninsula artists, many of them of independent and original thought, for a place to exhibit, especially in one-man shows—will stage a grand opening next Tuesday afternoon.

Property In Carmel City Limits Worth $9,000,000

Carmel's city assessment roll this year reveals a total appraisal of $3,739,170, excluding utility properties and exemptions, representing an increase of $122,185 over last year's total assessment of $3,616,985—but property owners will breathe easier when they learn that, aside from increased assessment due to new improvements, this represents an unappreciable increase in the tax re-appraisals—a mere one-seventh of one per cent, in fact.

Counting estimated utility assessment and including tax-exempt property, this makes a grand total of $3,993,570—or nearly four million dollars in assessment, and representing a real value of between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 in property values within the city limits.

New improvements up to March of this year are represented in the current figures, but utilities will be included later to add approximately $173,030, last year's figure.

The assessment figures may be broken down into $1,798,175 for real estate, $1,834,575 for improvements, and $187,820 personal property, or a total of $3,820,570, less exemptions amounting to $81,400.

In 1938 these figures were: real property, $1,754,195; improvements, $1,748,165; personal property, $188,270; exemptions, $73,645; net assessment, $3,616,985.

City Clerk Saldee Van Bröwer prepared the assessment roll, using the county roll, which was brought up to date this year, as a general guide, but city assessment figures continue to lag behind county assessments. They have been customarily below county figures, which represent approximately 50 per cent of the estimated real value.

A hearing to set the city tax rate will be held next Wednesday afternoon in order to pass the tax ordinance at the first meeting in September.

City of Carmel taxes on 1938 assessment of $3,616,985, were as follows: General tax, $36,169.85; 1930 bonds, $1,081.75; 1936 bonds, $1,082.40; Library fund, $6,873.40; total, $45,207.40.

Art Goes to the Monterey County Fair Again

With three of six large mural backdrops and windbreaks for the Monterey County Fair horse show ring completed in three weeks work, members of the local Federal Arts project are now working on the remaining sections of the mural, which, when completed, by the opening of the Fair, at Monterey, September 14, will be 10 feet high and 275 feet long. The murals, as shown in the photograph above, will give a connected picture of typical Monterey county scenes. August Gay designed them, while the artists who worked on the project were James Fitzgerald, John Stanley, Victor Mantilla and Bruce Ariss.

WPA Aid Would Make Possible Adobe Construction For Carmel High School

More definite idea of what sort of school buildings may be in store for the proposed Carmel high school was suggested this week with the possibility being brought up of WPA labor being used to manufacture and possibly lay adobe bricks as a highly desirable exterior finish to the one-story buildings.

Such WPA jobs are already widespread in the state in various county projects, and one in Monterey county may be seen at Castroville where a community center is being built.

It was stated following Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Carmel trustees that such buildings could be obtained which otherwise would be too expensive for the board to consider under its restricted building budget, and more economical even with the luxury of stucco. Adobe lends itself to single-story construction and is decidedly in keeping with the type of school generally considered most suitable to the site and in harmony with the tastes of the residents of the district.

Although Hugh Comstock is chairman of the school board and his building firm handles adobe brick, there is no connection between this fact and the manufacturing of the brick with WPA labor.

No detailed figures are available as yet on estimated building costs.

An application for a WPA project is being prepared by the architect to be submitted as soon as possible, perhaps within three weeks, after which it will take probably another

DR. DAVID MATZKE DIES SUDDENLY IN EAST HOME

Dr. David Matzke, who practiced for some time in Carmel until about 1933, died suddenly Wednesday at his home in the East, friends here learned yesterday. Son of a Stanford professor of Romance languages, Dr. Matzke was a brilliant surgeon. He is survived by his wife and child.

CARMEL POLICE BUSY AS CARS COLLIDE, TREE FALLS

Reports of the Carmel police department this week show the force was kept busy running to car wrecks—there were five in which ten cars tangled—and to attend to a fallen tree on Fourth and San Antonio.

A car driven along San Antonio barely missed hitting the tree, an acacia, as it toppled.

Vandalism by juveniles at the Forest Theater WPA project was also investigated as well as a report of a house having been entered and reports of two stolen bicycles.

six weeks before a decision can be made.

A letter from the Pacific Gas and Electric company suggesting use of gas instead of oil for heating has been received and is receiving consideration.

A start before January 1, 1940, has not been anticipated recently by the board, and present delays in action are only a matter of red tape, according to indication given by the board.

Routine business transacted by the board included signing a contract for $800 with the Bay Rapid Transit for transportation of Pebble Beach students during the approaching school year, completing revision of the plan for renewing policies with the Carmel Association of Insurance Agents for $28,000 at a premium cost of $413. The total insurance has been increased from $98,000 to $138,000, while annual premiums will be reduced to $214 beginning next year.

The board has also increased its grant to the state vocational rehabilitation service in Monterey county from $100 to $125.

JUNIOR TENNIS EVENT

A tennis tournament for children 10-14 years of age will be staged at the Carmel city courts Monday to Wednesday. Entry is free.

SAN FRANCISCO, BIG SISTER CITY TO CARMEL, STILL LIVES

Carmel's destiny is more with San Francisco than any other large city in the United States, being tributary to San Francisco rather than her rival, Los Angeles. We are "colored" by her personality and the personality of her people is ours.

Yet the voice of Los Angeles, with strident note, has found the ear of national magazines, such as the American Mercury; and its Chamber of Commerce booster campaign—hitting out at the rival coast port from which it has stolen shipping and some industry—has carried on insidious work to San Francisco's detriment. In effect, San Francisco is likened to Portland, which has suffered in recent years from all the troubles usually blamed on the labor unions.

One summary in the San Francisco News Letter and Wasp strikes back at this raving over San Francisco's purported decline. This summary shows business activity in San Francisco better this June than in any June in ten years and topping last June by nine per cent, and the six-month average well ahead of the same period last year.

New residential building permits, totaling $1,300,270, is the biggest June total in a decade, and includes the Federal low-cost housing project. All construction was up 28 per cent over last year, with real estate sales up 11 per cent over last June, new car sales up 25 per cent, power sales up 17 per cent, and retail trade of 711 independent stores up 4.2 per cent.

Employment and payrolls in the manufacturing industries were up 4.1 per cent and 6.7 per cent, respectively, and bank debits in June averaged $1,500,000 per day above last year. The increase in bank debits in San Francisco led all major cities of California with a gain of 5.2 per cent for this June over June 1938.

Carloadings for June numbered 14,975 as compared with 14,795 for last June, and the six-month total was up three per cent, while cargo tonnage over the San Francisco waterfront on which tolls were collected was off 14 per cent from May and 12 per cent from June, 1938—largely attributed to interruption of traffic due to a labor dispute. The activity for six months, on the other hand, was seven per cent above the same period in 1938.

Ship arrivals in June numbered 206 with a registered tonnage of 1,376,195, and departures numbered 429 with a registered tonnage of 1,401,300—between 11 and 12 per cent increase over a year ago. Agricultural receipts were advanced a like proportion. Vehicular traffic over both bridges was up 24 per cent, with a similar great advance over the comparative six-month periods.

Electricity and gas sales were up roughly ten per cent, and while telephone connections showed a net loss for the month, they showed a gain over the six-month period.

Living conditions at the same time went down slightly, but were 11.3 per cent up from June, 1933, in line with living costs for 32 large cities.

Operations of San Francisco Airport hit an all-time high with scheduled flights totaling 1,238, 23 per cent up for this June over last June.

So, San Francisco isn't the city of the dead, but is showing definite signs of improvement. Meanwhile it continues to be one of the most beautiful and distinctive cities in America and in the world. With such an ideal port, it continues to thrive although much of its old shipping is diverted to ports further "up the river", and Los Angeles, for various reasons, continues to gain shipping rapidly.

EARLY DAYS OF NEW YORK CITY RECALLED BY WORLD TRAVELER

"Little Old New York"—of red-coated and cock-hatted gentlemen who rode in carriages—was recalled by Mrs. Katharine Ashe of New York City when she dropped into The Pine Cone office once more this week to renew acquaintance of five years ago.

Devoted to travel, Mrs. Ashe keeps young by being constantly on the move. Last year she was in Danzig, a guest of the United States vice-consul, and she has been in all the centers of Europe during the past ten years, before dashing back to New York, where the heat finally routed her and sent her back to Carmel, one place where a mild and cool climate can be depended upon the year around.

"I have some valuable old papers," Mrs. Ashe told us. "Some relating to the Rev. John Barent Johnson, who gave the funeral eulogy for George Washington before the Albany Assembly, and of Dr. John Bard and Dr. Samuel Bard, prominently associated with the founding of Columbia University. I am planning to write something about them which ought to be of interest."

"And incidentally, Columbia University is anxious to obtain these papers for their collection of historic documents."

Ancestors of Mrs. Ashe, who married into a prominent San Francisco family, are Drs. Bard, of Huguenot descent, and Rev. Johnson, of Holland Dutch descent, sprung of early New York State settlers. Even today Mrs. Ashe collects revenue from stock in the old Johnson estate in Brooklyn, she told us.

Two papers seemed worthy of especial note, one an 1812 will of Peter Roosevelt, a relative of Rev. Johnson and also, according to Mrs. Ashe, of the present president, and the other the "Oration on Union" delivered at the New Dutch Church in New York, May, 1794, before the Tammany Society or Columbian Order by the Rev. John Barent Johnson.

Dr. Samuel Bard was a founder of Columbia University and his family gave the land upon which now stands St. James Episcopal Church in Hyde Park, the "home church" of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Ashe, now staying at La Playa for some time, has lectured widely and is author of a book of poems, "Winged Thoughts". She frequently reads her poems against a background of music. Present plans of Mrs. Ashe are to remain in Carmel and to devote herself to preparing an article or lecture based on the copious material she has in hand.

Girls to Race Pigs in Unique Derby at Fair

"What would a Monterey County Fair be without a Girl's Pig Derby?" Never mind, for the moment, what is a girl's pig derby.

The question comes from William Sorensen, New Monterey merchant. This week it was answered to his satisfaction, as Fair officials gave complete approval to the Pig Derby, which will include:

Pretty girls running down a green Fairgrounds midway. . .

A dozen odd squealing pigs. . .

And a man with an idea for amusing people. . .

"Just call me Bill 'cause that's how everybody knows me around here," Sorensen said in outlining plans for the derby to be held each afternoon of the Fair, September 14 to 17, at Monterey.

With the real Fair spirit, Bill said "this derby will be a success, the outstanding event of the Fair."

"It's a conglomeration, that's what a Pig Derby is," he said in a twangy voice. "There are squealing pigs, squealing girls and squealing crowds."

In a more matter of fact way, Sorensen explained that the Pig Derby "porkers" will be released from starting stalls and then raced down the Midway course, each under leash of their girl handlers.

"The girls," Sorensen went on, "will use little sticks about the size of a pencil to tickle them and make them run, and they will be around 40 pound pigs 'cause the smaller they are, the faster they run."

Sorensen asks county civic and community clubs to enter girls in the derby, and points out that there will be a daily first prize of $15 in addition to merchandise orders for the winners.

FOUR CARS IN COLLISION NEAR CARMEL CITY LIMIT

None was injured as four cars tangled in collisions near the Carmel city limits on Sunday morning. Paine Knickerbocker of Berkeley, Edward Edwards of Monterey Presidio, Wilmer Godwin of Monterey and Lily Nagy of Beverly Hills were the drivers. Fog was blamed.

Aunt Beulah is a pioneer woman...

Yessir, it's only the last few years the sheriff could persuade Auntie not to carry a gun.

Came here in '91. Raised 9 kids an' run a cow ranch after Uncle Alf left 'em an' went off with the circus.

Well, Aunt Beulah still yells "whoa" and pulls back on the steerin' wheel when she stops her car, like she did this p.m. in front o' my pumps.

"Evenin', Gus," Auntie roars at me. "Git out here an' doctor up this evil-eyed monster I'm a-herdin'!"

So I fill th' tank with Super-Shell and give the oil a look. "Your oil's low an' dirty," I says.

"One o' them kids musta poured sand—" she starts, but I shake my head.

"No, Auntie, now calm yourself: . . . you do a lot of stoppin' and startin' an' jammin' around in traffic. You need a tough oil to stand all the strains of your hard drivin'. And yet you got to have a fast-flowin' oil, too, to get up into those movin' parts instantly on cold starts."

"Can't afford none of them fancy ideas," Auntie sniffs. "Gimme some good plain two-bit oil."

"But, Auntie—this Golden Shell Oil I'm describin' costs only 25¢ a quart. Shall I drain it?"

"Go ahead—an' give me some of your Golden Shell Oil. But if you're lying to me about it, I'll turn you over my knee like I used to."

She would, too.

Sincerely,

Model of Carmel Mission Exhibited at World's Fair

Completed just in time for the Monterey county exhibit in the Mission Trails building at the San Francisco World's fair, Ben Phillips' scale model of the Carmel Mission was shipped to Treasure Island early Tuesday morning.

Carmel Street Superintendent William Askew and an assistant trucked the model up and Mrs. Phillips and Councilwoman Hazel Watrous drove up for the opening of the exhibit.

In the roof alone were nearly 7000 miniature tiles, each perfect in shape and color. The walls were built of bits of the same chalk rock which went into the mission, fitted together with plaster, and the whole bearing close resemblance to the original in color.

Placed in a glass cage, the model Mission makes a highly satisfactory and eminently representative exhibit for Carmel. The job of building this exhibit took more than two years and was done with the expert advice of Harry Downie of the Mission and many others qualified to assist. It will be on display for about two weeks.

It is hoped that when it is brought back to Carmel, it can be put on display at some central location where it can be appreciated.

MRA: NOT NEW RELIGION OR A CULT, BUT A LAW OF LIVING

By ELIZA V. COCKBURN

It is not a cult or new religion that we are seeking, but a law of living aright.

God is in us all—we are just human atoms of His whole being. Therefore the God or spiritual part of us is "good." Let us take that good and make it glow in beauty, which is living to keep the rules of God—"absolute honesty, absolute purity, absolute unselfishness, absolute love." If we have the first two we have the foundation and key to the last two; honesty in thought and deed, purity in thoughts, unselfishness in intimate family life, as well as among all our fellow men, and Love resulting from our love of God who has put us in the world with power for good or evil. When we know and acknowledge fearlessly to ourselves and others that we are living by the laws of God, we are shedding love and radiance in the world—"Let your light so shine among men, that they may see your good works and glorify your God which is in Heaven."

WHY WORRY?

Living by the laws of God is really very simple—so simple that the world has lost the bright star by trying to delve more deeply into the depths of dark planets.

Why worry as to how we have evolved from one stage to another, why not accept the fact that by the power of God we are here, and that by living aright we can achieve all; is it too simple for us and for that reason we have lost our Faith, trying to solve things we never can and were never intended to? If so, let us go back and be born again so that we may learn the Truth, and help to remake our world; it is not the world itself that is wrong—it is the hearts and minds of men—all distorted and muddled with many things.

Webb In Protest Against Plan for $30 on Thursdays

"Save California from disaster!" With that challenging appeal to California citizens, in every walk of life, to enlist in the campaign against the so-called Ham and Eggs amendment, former Attorney General U. S. Webb today characterized the 30-Thursdays pension proposal as "a one-way road to ruin and bitter disillusionment."

"If the voters approved this plan," asserted the former Attorney General, "California would face a depression compared with which the tragic consequences of the existing depression would be insignificant."

Webb, state chairman of the campaign against the "Ham and Eggs" act, which will appear on the ballot at the special election on Nov. 7, announced that Northern California Citizens Against 30-Thursdays—the organization which will conduct the election battle in northern counties—has opened headquarters at 111 Sutter street.

Clem Whitaker, San Francisco publicist and advertising executive, has been appointed as Northern California campaign director and states that volunteer citizens' groups will be organized at once in every northern county.

Former Attorney General Webb's condemnation of the big pension proposal, which purports to guarantee citizens over 50 years of age a pension of $30 per week for life, was predicated on three major points:

1.—That based on his knowledge of law and economics from his 36 years as attorney general of California, he is convinced the plan is impractical, unworkable and entirely valueless.

2.—That should a majority of the voters approve it, California's public treasuries would shortly be filled with worthless paper; relief payments would either end or be drastically curtailed; present pensions for the aged would be stopped for lack of funds; schools, police and fire departments and other essential functions of government would be crippled, and a depression would set in that would make all other depressions fade into insignificance.

3.—That in view of the present trend toward an adequate national pension system, which will provide elderly citizens with real American dollars instead of worthless paper, it is no time for California to risk economic disaster by thoughtlessly voting for a plan which can't possibly work and which would plunge the whole state into chaos.

"America in recent years has entered upon new ways of life," said Webb. "Among the most important advances in social and economic thought is the realization that society must assume the burden of caring for the old and incapacitated. It is quite natural for those immediately affected to be susceptible to promoters' schemes for using magic to help those in need, but it is outrageous that such schemes should impose upon faith, hope and credulity."

"We are approaching a nationwide solution of this problem, but certainly it is not good common sense to risk the destruction of the Commonwealth. It is conceivable that even before it could be determined whether the act is in violation of the federal constitution that a large percentage of California citizens would be thrown upon emergency federal relief due to confiscatory taxation and the breakdown of the state's economic structure. Every Californian should see at once to his registration and should make it his personal responsibility to go to the polls on election day and repudiate for all time this imposition of false hopes upon trusting people."

School Begins Enrollment Monday, Opening Aug. 28

School planning begins early this year for Sunset pupils who will enter the new Carmel junior high school. The school library will be open each afternoon next week, Monday to Friday, Aug. 21-25, for the registration of students in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades.

Opening of school is set for Monday, Aug. 28. Registrations will also be made at that time, but junior high school pupils are urged to register during the special registration week in every case where this is possible, in order to have their programs ready before the opening days of school.

The school program for the upper-grade students will be different in many ways from the type of program to which the children have been accustomed. Each child will have more teachers, since there is a special teacher for each subject; he will change rooms more often; and he will have a choice of elective subject to make. Registration week will provide time for individual conferences with students, to advise them, and to inform them as to the new routine and procedures.

Carmel Superintendent of Schools O. W. Bardarson and Mrs. Helen Wood, secretary, will be at the school during this time for counseling.

For the convenience of junior high school students who wish to talk over their programs with their parents before coming to register, the following school schedule is given:

Seventh Grade

The following is the basic course for which all seventh graders are registered: a double period of social living and English; a daily 20-minute period of music, followed by library study; a daily period combining science and mathematics; and a daily 40-minute period in healthful living activities.

There will be one elective period for this grade, and pupils are asked to choose shop, cooking, or art during this period.

Eighth Grade

The basic course for the eighth grade includes the double period in social living and English, the combined math and science course, and the healthful living period. This grade has two elective periods.

For the first period, students may choose between art-drama, shop, cooking, and individual study.

New Books at the Library

Among the new books at the Carmel Library which are of wide interest to readers is Vincent Sheean's greatly anticipated "Not Peace but a Sword."

Harry T. Moore's "The Novels of John Steinbeck" is also on the new book table and deals with Steinbeck's works with a map of the "Steinbeck country", showing the coast area from San Jose, where his mother and wife were born, to Point Sur, where Steinbeck worked as a surveyor's assistant in the building of the coast highway. Inland it includes Salinas, where his father was tax collector of Monterey county for many years, and the Salinas valley in which man of his stories and novels lay. His map was recently reprinted in the New York Times book review supplement.

One of the "River Series", Margaret Allis' "Connecticut River" will be of interest to all those born in New England or of New England antecedents, as it deals with one of the "Mother rivers" of New England, the great Connecticut along whose banks villages were built, crowding the Indian tribes northward, and frequently scourged by uprisings of the Indians.

The account is at once thorough, honest and exciting.

Mathilde Weil, Literary Agent, On Editors' Needs

A generation of experience in marketing writers' wares—poems, plays, stories and articles—has been Mathilde Weil's. In her New York office she was, for years, literary guide and inspiration to hundreds throughout the country who sought to place their manuscripts before the publishers who could use them.

In this time, Miss Weil has come to sense with adroitness the needs of the publisher and the shortcomings of the writer, and of this she talked informally before a small group in the Village Book Shop last Sunday afternoon.

"What Editors Want" was the title of her brief talk, but one thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Miss Weil has recently transferred her office to San Francisco where she will reside permanently—so as to tap the rich literary field which is here in California.

That there is no barrier between western writer and eastern publisher was stressed by Miss Weil, who said that many California writers have expressed the opinion that they are rather cut off and handicapped by living in the West.

"The demands of the publishers today is far beyond the supply," she emphasized. "Scouts are eternally on the lookout for another 'Gone With the Wind', and new writers are needed as the old ones die off or deteriorate."

Answering the frequent charge that publishers don't read manuscripts submitted to them, Miss Weil said that for a reader to pass over a manuscript which another publisher takes is unforgivable, but to recommend one that is a failure is not so great a crime in the publishing world.

"But what the publishers want is new and different material," said Miss Weil. "Don't imitate, as every success is immediately followed by imitations. Better, go straight to life itself for material, life as you know it, and to write about it honestly."

"Fiction," she said, "should no longer be sentimental, but adventurous and romantic and taken direct from life—of course, with imagination to dramatize and to make the individual experience the more general experience."

Miss Weil appealed for more use of the genuine Pacific Coast background, as distinguished from the pioneer or typically two-gun western. (Pulps, sex, "rental library stuff" and old-fashioned sentimental novels, she declared, are going by the board). Today the demand is for personality rather than sentiment.

Taking up four divisions of literary effort, verse, essays or articles, fiction and the short story, Miss Weil urged poets to get their work published before attempting book-length efforts, and deprecated private publications; while the literary essay has almost vanished, there is great demand, she said, for articles, especially those humanizing science; fiction depends more and more on dialogue, well handled; while the short story, even the "short short", needs less and less of plot and more of character and personality.

Miss Weil described her career in the selling of writing as "something dear to my heart; something I've lived with all my life." Middle-aged, hardly stoutish, with thick glasses, yet bright and excited eyes and wide and pleasant mouth, Miss Weil is the type of motherly person to whom no one would feel ashamed to present a "brain child" for criticism and help.

THE BLACK AND WHITE

The Black and White, special artists' number of the Carmel Pine Cone, will come off the presses soon, bringing to the Carmel public and subscribers of The Pine Cone in many parts of the United States a record of the work of many prominent Carmel and peninsula artists.

Together with this, The Pine Cone will give biographic material of wide interest to Carmelites and to the art world. Such an issue is bound to be most welcome.

Carmel as an art colony is an idea which has always been close to the heart of The Pine Cone and it is with distinct pleasure that The Pine Cone is able to announce the willing and generous cooperation of the artists themselves, who feel that this is a rallying point for their members.

The Pine Cone feels that Carmel is blessed with some of the greatest of living artists, with some of the most promising younger artists, and with a gallery unsurpassed which the Carmel Art Association has been able to give us through community cooperation and the Carmel Art Institute which has been a center for teaching artists and their pupils.

It may seem trite to call Carmel an art colony, because in actual numbers the artists are so far outnumbered by various other minorities in the village. Yet it is because of the outstanding group which we have here in Carmel and on the peninsula that Carmel can still claim to be an "art colony."

Many years ago, long before Frank Powers and Frank Devendorf conceived of Carmel as a town, Carmel attracted those who sought out beauty and many was the young lady of the Gay Nineties who brought down her paints to "do" Point Lobos, venerable Carmel Mission, the cypress trees on Seventeen-Mile Drive or the sand dunes. They continued to come to Carmel where typically Californian natural beauty was at its best, and, when the calamity of earthquake and fire struck San Francisco in 1906, Carmel was a logical refuge of creative artists, painters, writers, poets. In these early years, the stamp was put on Carmel, and the fame of Carmel as an art colony spread far and wide.

Some of our elder artists arrived in Carmel about that time and have remained, unobtrusively working in their studios. Among some of the earlier artists associated with pioneer Carmel days and who are still active are William Watts, William Silva, Ferdinand Burgdorff, M. DeNeale Morgan—all of whom will be seen in this Black and White number.

DO IT NOW!

Just as surely as the streamliner was wrecked last week, California is heading for a tremendous smashup should the Ham'n'eggers win their special election November 7.

There is one sure way to stop for all time this statewide derailment and that is to go to the polls and vote the pension plan down. However it is none too soon nor yet too late to warn everybody that before they can vote at this election they must be registered voters, and to be a registered voter one must register to vote.

If you voted at the general election last November and have not changed your residence you are a qualified voter. If you have moved you MUST re-register. There are several places you can go to register here in Carmel: Staniford's Drug Store, Ocean Avenue; F. O. Robbins, Dolores Street between Eighth and Ninth, east side; P. A. McCreery at Thoburns, Ocean Avenue.

Don't be among the missing millions this year. To vote against Ham and Eggs at this election is your

TO A SEA GULL IN DISTRESS

No tragedy transcends the broken wing!
I found you as you struggled on the sand,
Beyond the water where the long waves fling
Their iridescent laces on the land.
Too close I could not go: your darkened eyes
Forbad me in an ecstasy of fear.
The blue infinitudes of seas and skies
Were all the pity suffered to draw near.
The soaring lines of flight, wind-carved and true,
In frustrate effort laboured toward the air,
Only to fall; and yet again renew
The skyward gesture, ending in despair.
I left you there, not knowing what to do;
But O, my soul itself remembers you!

—DORA HAGEMEYER.

SONG

I would so sing to you
That yet my morning song
Might echo all the day
And all night long.

I would send forth to you
As violets do, a slight,
Cool fragrance
To commend the night.

When we are memories
These violets, my song, and I,
Then may my song rise in the winds
Of dusk as I pass by:

May I, a shadow—something more—
Stir strongly at your side to keep
Communion with you, waking
Or asleep.

—HOMER G. COMBS.

REQUIESCAT

She walked alone upon the earth,
Alone was meant to be
When last her pathway led her down,
Downward to the sea.

There was a miracle of song
Within the breakers' moan—
Why censure her if she but willed
To make the song her own?

She glided into silver depths
Where still the mermaids dwell,
And there a silver throne was set
Upon a silver shell,

And she was queen of all the deep,
A coral wreath her crown;
And mermaids wove upon the night
Starlight for her gown.

What matter if the earth be lost
And heaven can never be?
They live within a peaceful realm
Who dwell beneath the sea.

"BRACE UP, AMERICA!"

Writing in the Atlantic Monthly some time ago, Wendell L. Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, said this: "A revision of the tax program so as to encourage investment; a reduction in government spending; a modification of the unnecessarily restrictive provisions of our economic legislation—these are the measures upon which business expansion awaits . . ."

"This is a campaign of revitalization which looks forward rather than back; which is not political in its nature, and should legitimately command the support of Republicans and Democrats, Conservatives and New Dealers, employers and employees. It is a program for the assertion of one of our more neglected liberties—that of free enterprise—with the same vigor as we assert our liberties of speech, of press, and of religious worship."

The title of Mr. Wilkie's article was, "Brace Up, America!" And nothing could do so much to brace us up as a program of the sort he outlines. America is ready to go places. We have the men, the money, the machines. We'll start going when some such program as Mr. Wilkie suggests is put into effect—and not before.

—also—

The American Federation of Investors recently made a study of 163 typical industrial, railroad and utility corporations. It was found that 62 per cent of the aggregate profits made by these companies was paid to government in taxes.

Read that over again if you're wondering why capital is in "hiding"—and why industry at large is marking time and not going ahead.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS

Those employing domestic servants should avail themselves of information regarding the new state law requiring compensation insurance for domestics.

The Governor has approved Assembly Bill 156, passed by the 1939 California Legislature, which will bring domestic servants under the Compensation Act. The old law excluded household domestics. Briefly, the bill referred to, adds this section to the California Code:

"3358.5. Any person engaged in household domestic service who is employed by one employer for over fifty-two hours per week is an employee under this division." (There is still excluded casual labor and casual domestic employees; for example, maids—who come into the house for one or two days' service per week).

Your attention is also directed to Assembly Bill 1521, enacted this year and approved by the Governor, calling for a mandatory penalty of not less than $300 on employers who fail to insure their compensation liability. Both measures become effective September 19, next.

The domestic employed by the week or month, living at the home, might well contend that actual work service rendered reaches the fifty-two hours per week. Obviously, the average household boasts of no time-clock and it would, therefore, be hard to prove that some so employed had not served up to the limit.

Compensation insurance supplies the only practical safeguard.

Assessment of Carmel city property this year reaches a new high of $3,739,170 (or a total of $3,820,570 including tax-exempt property), plus approximately $173,000 in public utility property.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

Here's a press release from La Jolla featuring the work of Dr. Marston Sargent, scientist who has spent several summers in Carmel and recently returned last month with Mrs. Sargent for a brief visit with old friends:

Small, minnow-like fish from warm springs in the desert regions of California and Nevada are being studied by Dr. Francis B. Sumner and Dr. Marston C. Sargent, of the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanography, in an effort to understand one of Nature's puzzling problems.

The question for which the scientists are seeking an answer is this: To what extent do warm and cold water animals differ in their oxygen consumption, and to what extent have the warm water ones become acclimatized, so that their oxygen consumption has fallen below its original high level, which followed their subjection to the higher temperatures?

The two state University scientists have been comparing the oxygen consumption of these warm-spring fishes with that of cold-spring and ocean fishes. They have discovered that while the warm and cold water fishes still differ widely in this respect, the former have adapted themselves, to a certain degree, to their warmer environment.

Dr. Sumner and Dr. Sargent recently returned from a two-weeks' collecting trip on which they obtained a large number of specimens. Warm water desert fish were taken from springs in an area north of Bishop in the Owens Valley, and in an area on the Amargosa desert near the California-Nevada state line.

"The fish are small—from one to three inches in length," said Dr. Sumner. "The springs from which they were taken ranged in temperature from below 70 degrees to as high as 91 degrees."

"How the fish ever got into these isolated desert springs is not fully known. The best explanation seems to be that the desert was once a much greener and more hospitable place than it is now. The creeks flowing from these springs were a part of a large river system. As the land became arid and the streams dried up, the fish went upstream to the springs."

We should have mentioned quite some time ago that Kevin Wallace, brother of Moira Wallace, artist, had won a "Story" prize for a short story. Kevin, who works for the San Francisco Examiner along with Carmel's Reg Clappett, recently covered the Fair and while completing his college education while working on San Francisco newspapers, is now breaking into fiction, a field in which his father, Grant Wallace, excelled.

Charles "Chick" McCarthy is gaining honor in southern California, while continuing to keep alive the spark of the Carmel Players with twice-a-week play reading classes at Sunset school on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

McCarthy has been called to San Diego this week to help stage "Topaze" in the southernmost California city. Chick reports that San Diego is greatly interested in the amateur theater and that they are strong on the financial end. Last year, McCarthy directed "Topaze" with Lee Crowe, which was one of the first of a series of successes during that season.

On the way home from San Diego, McCarthy planned to stay over in Hollywood, see Carmel's latest delegation to the film colony—Dorothy Comingore, who is playing currently as a lead under the film name of Kay Winters, and Dan James, who is helping get out Charlie Chaplin's latest, "The Dictator", which is due to be released before long.

Visiting Carmel overnight as a guest of La Playa Hotel was Pat Casey, president of the San Francisco Newspaper Guild, which has a thousand members in the San Francisco bay area, who returned from a vacation spent at Laguna with Mrs. Casey by way of Carmel.

Casey, a handsome and highly intelligent Irishman, grew up in the newspaper game. He began as office boy for William Randolph Hearst, left in the middle of making up an edition six years later. Today, genial and eloquent, he is a kingpin in the San Francisco Guild which recently obtained a contract which is virtually "closed shop", providing that four out of five new employees must become Guild members within 90 days, a signal victory for this young union.

Twice Casey has been a delegate to Guild conventions, to Toronto, where the international phase of the Guild's activities was very much to the fore—especially in view of the drastic action in the province of Quebec which will have nothing to do with the Guild—and again recently in San Francisco, where Casey was host to Heywood Brown and the Guild convention.

When Elwood Graham, promising young artist who is turning out some work of real genius in applying color instead of line to form, went on a scouting trip into far northern California last week, he was made to feel right at home.

Seeing that there was to be a dance held on Saturday night at Fort Bragg, the Union Lumber company town where great redwood logs roll out of the forest and, sawn into planks, are slung out to waiting schooners at Noyo river to go to coast cities and to Japan, Graham decided to join in the fun.

Wearing his usual black beard and checked shirt, Graham found he was right in style. The lumberjacks and even the gentle townspeople appeared similarly garbed and beards were the accepted thing.

Here the dances were largely square dances in which the people—the population is largely first and second generation Finnish with a sprinkling of Russians—enjoyed themselves most completely.

Fort Bragg is synonymous with lumber. It is also synonymous with commercial salmon fishing. This is because the Noyo river, where it enters the sea just south of Fort Bragg, has a channel just deep enough to allow boats up to 60 feet to enter at high tide—a tight squeeze and they occasionally bump across.

One of the commercial fishermen just down from Fort Bragg is Harry Downes, who dropped anchor in Stillwater Cove a few nights ago after "chasing fish" all the way from Eureka to San Pedro and back to these parts.

Downes, who has a Diesel boat, can travel from Monterey to San Pedro for $3.50 for fuel, so traveling in his boat is not so expensive. He tells the story of his journeys after fish this year as follows:

"I went up to Eureka too early in the season. I got fed up waiting around there for the fish. So I went to Fort Bragg, too soon. I just got Miss Vere Basham, who formerly made her home in Carmel, became the bride of Bert Benbow, owner of the Benbow Lodge on the Redwood highway, a week ago last Tuesday. They were married in Carson City, Nevada, and immediately following the ceremony motored to San Francisco where they have been spending the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Benbow will spend the rest of the summer at Benbow Lodge, on the beautiful Eel river, and the winter at their home in San Leandro. During their time in San Leandro they are planning a trip to Carmel when Mrs. Benbow's friends and relatives on the peninsula will have an opportunity to greet the newlyweds.

Coming to Carmel in September are members of the family of the late Frank Powers, who with the late Frank Devendorf, laid the foundations for the village of Carmel. This Sunday several of the family met together for a reunion in the old family home on Steiner street in San Francisco and present on this occasion were Mrs. Madeleine Powers Ullman, Signor and Signora Marino Dusmet de Smours (Marlan Powers), whose home is in Capri, Italy; Mr. and Mrs. Howard McGurran, (Elizabeth Ullman) and Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott Fassett. Absent from the family gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Gallatin Powers who are on a world cruise, now somewhere in the south seas aboard their yacht Otter, and Mrs. Jane Gallatin Powers who is in Rome where she now resides. The Powers family grew up in Carmel and their return here will give them the opportunity of renewing old friendships and memories.

Mrs. F. W. Clampett has been spending several days in San Francisco this week and was expected back in Carmel yesterday.

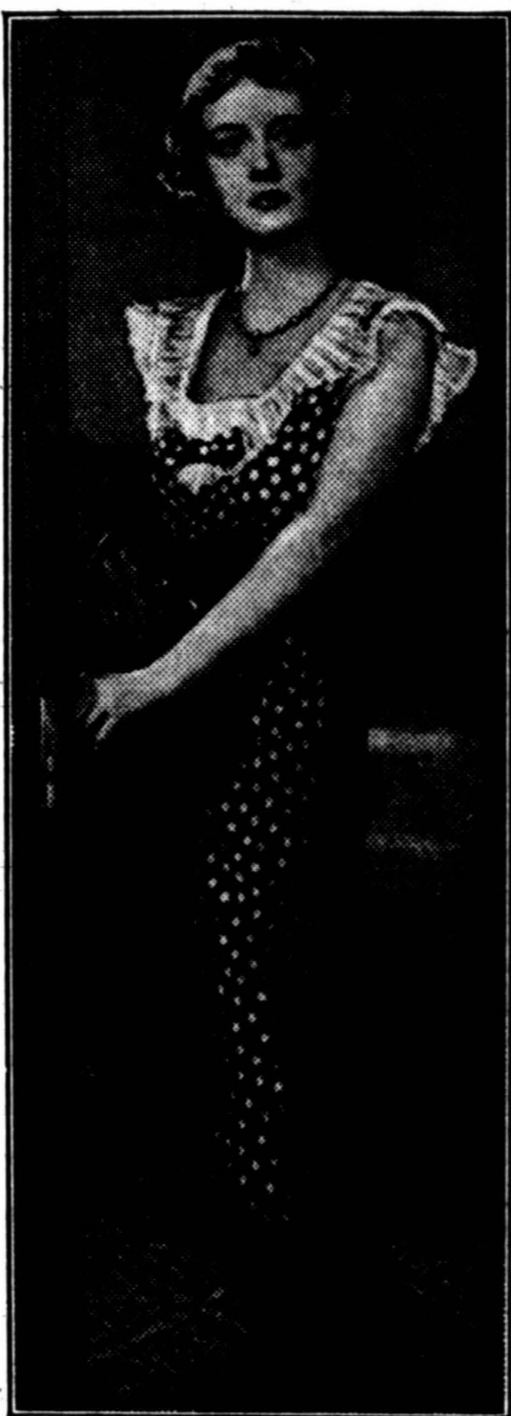

Back in Carmel again after nearly a month's absence is Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel. Two weeks of this time were spent in San Luis Obispo where Mrs. Ten Winkel visited her niece, Mrs. Carol Lockwood, and the rest of the time in Santa Maria at the Santa Maria Inn. In Santa Maria Mrs. Ten Winkel spent a good deal of her time with Mrs. Clifford Hicks, who was formerly Miss Helen McLaughlin of Carmel.

On Thursday evening of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huffer were hosts at a small dinner at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club when the guests were Major and Mrs. Cooper Anderson, their daughter, Ruth Jacobs, and Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel.

Mrs. C. I. Burt and her daughter, Nancy, of San Francisco, who have been occupying the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Darling this summer, returned to their home in the city on Wednesday.

Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel moved this week to the Adam Darling home on Carmelo street between Ninth and Tenth. She will remain there until the return of the Darlings from their European trip. They are at present in the Scandinavian countries and will leave for this country in September, visiting in Toronto, New York and Kansas City on their journey to the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford spent last Friday at Mills College for the final demonstration of the Bennington school of the dance which has been holding its summer session at Mills. Each of the groups under their various teachers presented a program of their work. Before leaving the bay region the Fords attended the Ice Follies in San Francisco to see the latest in figure skating.

Fritz Wurzmahn was in San Francisco yesterday with the very important purpose of meeting his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wurzmahn, who arrived by boat from Germany where they formerly made their home at Frankfort-on-Main. Mr. and Mrs. Wurzmahn, Sr., will in future reside in Carmel where their son has taken a house for them in the north part of town.

Tanned after a week spent in Tolumne Meadows is Miss Beatrice Ralston who returned to Carmel from a visit in the old gold mining country last Sunday.

Hugh Wiley, writer for the Saturday Evening Post, left Carmel on Monday for his home in Atherton after spending two weeks in our village.

Tuesday morning the representatives of the Carmel American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Herbert Landers, the new president, and Mrs. W. R. Moore, left by car for Oakland where they attended the California department convention of the American Legion Auxiliary held in Scottish Rite Temple in the bay city on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. At the same time the Legion itself was convening at the Hotel Oakland while the headquarters for the auxiliary was at the Hotel Leamington.

Mrs. Cyril George of Berkeley, sister of Mrs. Tom Work of Carmel, has been the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Brownell for a few days this week.

Roe Marie Arlen will return to Carmel tomorrow after spending several weeks with her father, Richard Arlen, at his ranch, Breezy Top, near Los Angeles. She will be accompanied north by Miss Barbara Dinkelspiel, her former roommate at Douglas school, who will stay here in Carmel as Miss Arlen's guest for two weeks.

Here on the peninsula for a visit is Miss Minerva Cross, a former member of the crafts department of the University of California who has metal work as her particular field of achievement.

Occupying a cottage on Santa Rita street for a month are Mrs. Robert D. Samuels and her daughter, Margaret, of Pasadena.

People Talked About

there when the fish hit Eureka. I made a little scratching for fish.

"Then I heard about albacore being caught at San Pedro, so I started down. Off the Farallones I began picking up albacore—I got half a ton and came into Monterey to unload. Next day I started out again for San Pedro . . . I got four fish going and coming!"

San Pedro is rather more than 300 miles from here by sea—a distance that can be traveled in four straight courses.—A long way to go for a couple of fish!

One of those fishermen who nearly always travels alone, Downes makes these trips in his little 35-foot boat at almost any season of the year. It's merely routine to go 20 or 30 miles out from land and, when night comes, to shut off the motor and go down below to sleep. Not many landmen would sleep comfortably under such circumstances.

Golf! The important word on the Monterey Peninsula this week with the California amateur tournament starting on Monday as does also the California handicap event. On Wednesday the Del Monte Women's championship will start over the Del Monte course. The other two events will take place at Peninsula Country Club, Pebble Beach, and Cypress Point courses. Golfers from all over the state are gathering on the peninsula this week-end for these tournaments.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Whitman left yesterday for Crystal Lake where they will spend a few days before returning to Carmel. During their absence Mrs. Kit Whitman will stay at their home with the Whitman children.

Paul McCoolle, Pianist To Be Heard August 27

A musical treat for Carmelites is promised by Kit Whitman for Del Monte Lodge on Sunday evening, Aug. 27, when she will present Paul McCoolle, Santa Barbara pianist, in a program of Scarlatti, Chopin, Debussy, Bach and Charles Griffé.

The tentative program announced includes three Scarlatti, the Chopin Ballade in G minor, three studies and three Ecossaises, four or five selections from Debussy and two Charles Griffé numbers.

Heard in a recent recital at the home of the Argentine consul in San Francisco, McCoolle was praised by one of the distinguished guests, Leopold Stokowski, in no uncertain terms.

McCoolle was a recent visitor in Carmel and a guest of Noel Sullivan at Hollow Hills Farm in Carmel Valley.

During the past year McCoolle has been on tour in the Pacific Northwest, Western Canada and in Hawaii, where he received wide and favorable comment, and he has been heard widely in southern California. McCoolle has been a student under Wanda Landowska, the greatest living authority on 18th Century music and usually chooses for his programs not from the garrulous and perfunctory minor 18th Century composers, but from the great composers, of whom the greatest is Bach.

Beginning his concert career at the age of 15 in the Northwest, McCoolle has risen to be recognized by critics in this country and in Europe as one of America's foremost pianists. In Paris he spent several years, studying with the great Landowska, with concentration on Bach and other 18th Century music. He then went on tour of Germany with Samuel Dushkin, and made his Paris debut in 1926, which was followed by many recitals abroad.

His playing found favor with the critics of Brussels, Liege, Milan, Venice, Rome and Granada as well as in Paris. In Spain, he made an intensive study of the Spanish folk music as well as of the contemporary composers of that country.

First a Chopin enthusiast, he grew in the precision of Bach, mastered the nuances of Debussy and the abstractions of the moderns, before finally embracing the color and expressionism of the Spanish school.

"Invitation to Waltz", "Of Human Bondage" on Filmarte Screen

The gay, romantic musical film, "Invitation to the Waltz," which stars the lovely Lillian Harvey and handsome Carl Esmond, is a delightful fantasy about a little girl, Jenny Peachy, who was the bad girl of the dancing class. During the big moment of dance recital, at which are many notables, Jenny can't resist the temptation to "clown", and she appears on the stage in black-face against a background of lovely, white and frilly ballet dancers. This leads to her discovery as a dancer with "originality and personality", and she is promptly swished to fame.

"Invitation to the Waltz" plays Wednesday and Thursday. On the same program is the March of Time entitled "State of the Nation." A complete summary of this country's financial affairs is presented.

The strange love which holds a cultured student to a selfish, beautiful unworthy woman is etched in "Of Human Bondage," the powerful film version of Somerset Maugham's novel of the same name. It starts tonight at the Filmarte theater.

Leslie Howard is starred in the role of Phillip Carey, and Bette Davis plays Mildred, the waitress who holds his soul in "human bondage." Kay Johnson, Frances Dee, Reginald Denny, and Reginald Owen are others in the cast, which were directed by John Cromwell.

"THE PURITAN" AT FILMARTE WAS BANNED BY N. Y. CENSOR

In New York City every picture must be viewed and passed by the Moving Picture Board of Censors, highest municipal tribunal for justice—whether it be conviction or acquittal. This group of 12 men and women decide for roughly 7,000,000 inhabitants of America's biggest town what they may or may not see on the motion picture screen. Sometimes the seven million are protected from films branded "indecent, inhuman, immoral, sacrilegious, or of such character that exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite crime." More often than not, they are merely cheated out of seeing something of rare beauty, or a piece marked with fine artistry and great dramatics.

The latter was nearer the case when this austere and solemn board ruled that Liam O'Flaherty's "The Puritan," which opens a three-day run at the Filmarte Sunday, could not be legally shown in the City or State of New York. For the film has been shown in other, and more loose-moraled communities throughout the nation, with great success, artistically and at the box-office. But New York's millions remain chaste and pure—without the demoralizing effect of "The Puritan," which was labeled with the extra designation "indeed immoral."

O'Flaherty's film tells the story of one Francis Ferriter, an Irish fan-

Donald Duck and Clara Cluck, Walt Disney's "heroes" of animated cartoon and radio fame, will be characterized by Clarence Nash and Florence Gill at the California State Fair at Sacramento, on Children's Day, Friday, Sept. 1, the opening day.

These are the two artists who provide the voices for the screen and the radio presentations of the well-known Disney characters.

Children under 15 are admitted free on that day.

"TATTERS" IS ENTERTAINMENT AGAIN AT OLD FIRST THEATER

Once again "Tatters, the Pet of Squatters' Gulch" is the entertainment provided at the old First Theatre, Monterey, tonight and until Sunday night. The show, with Jessie Joan Brown as Tatters and an excellent supporting cast, opened again last night and will end with a run of 32 presentations on the peninsula.

The olio, or, aftershow, is the featured element in the present "Tatters," with the play run through briefly by a cast which has its lines clipped down for machine-gun action. Many acts, old and new, have been refurbished for this week end's stage attraction and the result is highly pleasing.

Spud Gray is again the master of ceremonies which includes the task of "music teacher"—putting the audience through the community sing-song.

The cast includes Bill Shepard as a rough-neck squatter, leader of the gulch's men of violence; Gordon Knoles, as the half-breed son of the wealth wastrel who owns Squatters' Gulch, lock, stock and barrel, as portrayed by Milt Latham. Betty Bryant, Verne Williams, Del Page, Melba Hodges, and Whipple Gregerson.

New, and very funny acts enliven the olio, while the Hildebrand sisters, two infants who like Lotta and the child stars of the 70's, 80's and 90's, are incomparable in their routine and their elegant, refined songs. Teddie Stanton, in "Knee Deep in Daisies," song and dance number, is especially clever in this as a dancer.

The naughty Can-Can, with Winifred Howard, Ellen Skadan and Dell Haugh, is repeated from the last olio, as are the Gold Coast Symphony, the Alvarado street quartet and the hilarious "In the Bushes at the Bottom of the Garden."

Among the new numbers are "Just One Girl", Hildebrand sisters; "The Bathing Show," song and dance, Billie McConnell, George Smith and Teddie Stanton; "Get Out and Get Under", Willa Mae McIntosh and her automobile; "No, No, a Thousand Times No!" Carol Hildebrand.

Tarzan Finds Son in Film Story on Screen at Carmel

The first Tarzan picture in three years from M-G-M studios brings back together Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Tarzan Finds a Son!" at the Carmel Theater Sunday to Tuesday.

Five-year-old John Sheffield as Tarzan, Jr., emulates the famed Weissmuller's tree-swinging feats in a new role created for this film story. "Tarzan Finds a Son!" is built around Edgar Rice Burroughs' famous whole industry should protest and against which audiences should demonstrate by patronizing the film wherever it can be shown. The puritans must not be allowed to succeed in suppressing "The Puritan."

I been kinda brushin' up on gold. It don't look just on the up and up, the way they been doing this sleight-of-hand business there in Old Bazoo City.

By a simple twist of the wrist they make gold worth one thing today and maybe something else next week. And if a person was to sit up all night for a month—wracking his brain—he couldn't think up anything that would up-set confidence quicker, than this kind of shennanigans.

Gold for money, it has been used since back yonder around 700 B. C. It has been one thing that had value. And if you had 100 shekels in gold, you had a sense of security—down through the ages. But now, we talk security, but take away from a feller the very thing that gives security. If you are caught with a $5.00 gold piece, you go to jail.

If anybody should happen to read this piece that I am writing about gold, and if he knows what the idea is in burying all that gold down there in Kentucky, I wish he would drop me a note. I'd be up a stump.

Young with the low down,
JO SERRA.

The Golden Text will be: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever" (Rom. 11:34, 36). Bible selections will include the following passage from I Corinthians 8:5, 6 (to): "For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many,) But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; . . ."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "The exterminator of error is the great truth that God, good, is the only Mind; and that the suppositious opposite of infinite Mind—called devil or evil—is not Mind, is not Truth, but error, without intelligence or reality" (p. 469).

Carmel Artists Strongly Urge Retaining Wharf

Carmel artists — and Monterey's strong body of artists, too—all members of the Carmel Art Association this week, voted in favor of the petition circulated to preserve the old fish wharf at Monterey, threatened with destruction to make way for a recreation area, including beach concessions, on Monterey's beautiful and historic waterfront.

The petition was signed by all present and sent over to be presented before the city fathers of Monterey. The program to do away with the Fisherman's Wharf is a part of the so-called Knight plan, which by this time has achieved the nickname of "Be-nighted plan."

In other words, artists throughout the peninsula, headed by Myron Oliver, who has waged a continuous battle against "progress" as exemplified by the move to abandon the old wharf, are stoutly against such action.

The occasion of a concerted voice in this matter was the annual business meeting of the Carmel Art Association at the gallery on Dolores street on Monday morning.

At this time John O'Shea was re-elected for a third term as president and the following officers re-elected: First vice-president, Paul Whitman; second vice-president, Myron Oliver; secretary, Mrs. Nora Nichols Grabill; treasurer, Byington Ford.

The board includes the following re-elected members: William Ritschel, Mrs. Margaret Ingalls, Dr. Margaret Levick, Mrs. Laidlaw Williams, Ferdinand Burgdorff, Paul Dougherty, and Burton S. Boundey.

The following are newly-elected members of the board: Henry F. Dickson, Adolph Hanke, Noel Sullivan and William Watts. All four are well known Carmelites, and William Watts is an artist who was one of Carmel's "pioneers."

The treasurer's report showed a cash balance after the year's operations, in spite of the year past being one of the worst for art sales throughout the country.

Fifty members attended the brief, congenial business meeting. Mrs. Laura Maxwell moved a vote of thanks to the president and Mr. and Mrs. Clay Otto were also thanked for their work, respectively, as curator and builder of the new gallery. President O'Shea expressed appreciation of the cooperation of members, directors and the village of Carmel.

My blessings have banished fear.
—Ovid.

Art Gallery to Open Soon

noon and will be open each afternoon thereafter, including Sundays, from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The gallery will be in the Casa Verde on Decatur street in Monterey, not far from the old Customs House and Fisherman's Wharf—the same house in which Charles Warren Stoddard spent many years, and, until a month ago the studio of Sibyl Anikayev, Carmel photographer.

Listed among those interested in the new gallery are James Fitzgerald, August Gay, Abbie Lou Bosworth, Bruce Ariss, Maxine Albrow, Parker Hall, Paul Mays, Jeanne d'Orge Cherry, Wilhelmina Aldrich, Barbara Stevenson, Elwood Graham, Glynn Collins, Peggy Carroll, Elizabeth White and John Langley Howard.

Exhibited in this gallery will be etchings, oils, watercolors, lithographs, and other media.

Margaret Cluff will be in charge and announces that anyone may submit pictures to the jury, to be composed of Miss Cluff and two members drawn in rotation from the membership, for a hanging fee of 50 cents. A new show every month is promised.

"No gallery of this nature has ever been available to artists on the Monterey peninsula," a spokesman for the new gallery stated. "One of the best features is that the work being done today will be on exhibit almost before the paint is dry."

The public is cordially invited to attend the gala opening at which sandwiches and coffee will be served.

DEED: Elizabeth F. Armstrong to Aileen McGee, July, 1939, $1500. Lot 11, Blk. 60, City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Sunset Teachers To Meet On New School Program

The first teacher's meeting of the year will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Aug. 26, in the Sunset school library. At this time members of the Carmel junior high school and Sunset elementary school faculty will join to consider the plans that have been formulated for the coming school year.

The initiation of the junior high school has necessitated certain rearrangements and adjustments. Administrators feel that the program that has been developed will meet the highest requirements and Dr. Aubrey Douglass, head of the secondary education division of the state, department has voiced approval of the preliminary program as developed.

Teachers will be arriving from various parts of the state and country during the coming week. New members of the faculty will be Mrs. Phyllis Heath Walker, science teacher; Mrs. Miriam Watson, healthful living teacher; Miss Adele Osborne, language teacher; Miss Isabel Schultzeberg, second grade; Milton Lanyon, art; and J. W. Getsinger, commercial teacher and principal of the adult school.

Ernest R. Calley, shop teacher, who has been studying at San Jose State College during the past year on leave of absence, will return to the school this year.

Mrs. E. R. Tutt has her sister, Mrs. H. R. Barkeley of Fresno, as her guest and entertained at an al fresco luncheon recently at Del Monte to which 14 guests were invited.
